Interpreting Bonhoeffer Clifford J. Green, Guy C. Carter, 2013-10-01 In the early twenty first century interest in the life and work of Dietrich Bonhoeffer is increasing significantly In this environment how should we understand and interpret Bonhoeffer Interpreting Bonhoeffer explores the many questions surrounding the complexities of Bonhoeffer's life work and historical context and what they might mean for how we understand and interpret Bonhoeffer now and in the future

Sustaining Fictions Lesleigh Cushing Stahlberg, 2009-05-01 Even before the biblical canon became fixed writers have revisited and reworked its stories The author of Joshua takes the haphazard settlement of Israel recorded in the Book of Judges and retells it as an orderly military conquest The writer of Chronicles expurgates the David cycle in Samuel I and II offering an upright and virtuous king devoid of baser instincts This literary phenomenon is not contained to inner biblical exegesis Once the telling becomes known the retellings begin through the New Testament rabbinic midrash medieval mystery plays medieval and Renaissance poetry nineteenth century novels and contemporary literature writers of the Western world have continued to occupy themselves with the biblical canon However there exists no adequate vocabulary academic or popular religious or secular literary or theological to describe the recurring appearances of canonical figures and motifs in later literature Literary critics bible scholars and book reviewers alike seek recourse in words like adaptation allusion echo imitation and influence to describe what the author for lack of better terms has come to call retellings or recastings Although none of these designations rings false none approaches precision They do not tell us what the author of a novel or poem has done with a biblical figure do not signal how this newly recast figure is different from other recastings of it and do not offer any indication of why these transformations have occurred Sustaining Fictions sets out to redress this problem considering the viability of the vocabularies of literary midrashic and translation theory for speaking about retelling

A Handbook for African Mother-Tongue Bible Translators Isaac Boaheng, 2022-03-22 A Handbook for African Mother Tongue Bible Translators examines key theoretical and practical issues to equip readers with the basic skills required to translate the Bible naturally accurately faithfully and clearly into their mother tongues Since accurate translation enhances the interpretation and application of Scripture the book will also improve the hermeneutical ability of the reader The book is divided into two parts the first part deals with theoretical issues related to Bible translation in general with the African context in focus and the second focuses on the key practical matters in translation This text will appeal to undergraduate and graduate seminary students and students of translation studies at private and public universities in Africa and beyond Bible translators and consultants will also find the text useful Kajian Bahasa Dan Terjemahan ,2006 Issues on linguistic and translational studies in Malaysia papers of a seminar Bilingual journal of the École française d'Extrême-Orient ,2003 The Pennsylvania State University Studies Pennsylvania State College,Pennsylvania State University,1969 Welsh Responses to the French Revolution Marion Löffler,2012 This ground breaking anthology presents loyalist and radical poetry and prose from the newspapers almanacs and periodicals current in Wales from the outbreak of the French Revolution in1789 to the Peace of Amiens in 1802 together with an extended introduction and two maps Legilinguistic Translatology Aleksandra Matulewska,2013 The author proposes a theory of legal translation the aim of which is to formulate postulates and dimensions used to characterize legal texts and their component parts for the purpose of establishing relevant meanings and choosing proper translatable equivalents for a selected legal communicative community of translation recipients Abraka Humanities Review ,2010 From English to Slovenian: Problems in Translation Equivalence Joseph Paternost,1970 Teaching World Literature David Damrosch,2009 This is an exciting and unsettling time to be teaching world literature writes David Damrosch Because the range of works taught in world literature courses has expanded enormously both historically and geographically the task of selection and of teacher preparation has grown more challenging Teachers of this field must grapple with such issues as coverage cultural difference and the role of translation in the classroom Should one emphasize masterpieces or traditions concepts or themes How does one avoid making a work bear the burden of representing an entire tradition To what extent should anthologies be used Can a course be global in scope and yet focus on a few works authors moments This collection of thirty two essays in the MLA series Options for Teaching offers an array of solutions to these challenges reflecting the wide variety of institutions courses and students described by the contributors An annotated bibliography is provided with a listing of useful Web sites Acta philologica ,2009 Framing Iberia David Asa Wacks,2003 Literature in Translation Carol Maier,Françoise Massardier-Kenney,2010 In the last several decades literary works from around the world have made their way onto the reading lists of American university and college courses in an increasingly wide variety of disciplines This is a cause for rejoicing Through works in translation students in our mostly monolingual society are at last becoming acquainted with the multilingual and multicultural world in which they will live and work Many instructors have expanded their reach to teach texts that originate from across the globe Unfortunately literature in English translation is frequently taught as if it had been written in English and students are not made familiar with the cultural linguistic and literary context in which that literature was produced As a result they submit what they read to their own cultural expectations they do not read in translation and do not reap the benefits of intercultural communication Here a true challenge arises for an instructor Books in translation seldom contain introductory information about the mediation that translation implies or the stakes involved in the transfer of cultural information. Instructors are often left to find their own material about the author or the culture of the source text. Lacking the appropriate pedagogical tools, they struggle to provide information about either the original work or about translation itself, and they might feel uneasy about teaching material for which they lack adequate preparation. Consequently, they restrict themselves to well-known works in translation or works from other countries originally written in English. Literature in Translation: Teaching Issues and Reading Practices squarely addresses this pedagogical lack. The book's sixteen essays provide for instructors a context in which to teach works from a variety of languages and cultures in ways that highlight the effects of linguistic and cultural transfers.

Four Translation Strategies Determined by the Particular Needs of the Receptor Charles S. Kraszewski, 1998. This volume discusses the four rationales for translating a given literary work, focusing particularly on the translation of poetry and drama, with many examples included from the domain of biblical translation.

A Comparative Study of Four English Translations of Sûrat Ad-Dukhân on the Semantic Level Saudi Sadiq, 2010. Through combining a knowledge of translation theory and application, the present book aims at holding a semantic comparison of four English translations attempted by Muhammad Marmaduke Pickthall, Abdullah Yusuf Ali, R. A. Arberry, and Muhammad Mahmud Ghali. In the chapter on the poem "The Chapter of Smoke," as a theoretical framework, the book deals with several linguistic and cultural problems of translation, with special reference to Qur'anic translation and the principles that should be considered on translating the Qur'an. The core of the book is a comparison of sixty-eight lexical, syntactic, and stylistic selections from Sûrat Ad-Dukhân. The comparison depends on various Qur'anic interpretations and Arabic dictionaries to decide the precise meanings of the selections. Then a translation is suggested, and the four translations are judged; the correct ones are acknowledged, and the mistaken ones are shown along with the reasons underlying the mistakes. To reach the precise meaning in English and judge the translations compared accurately, many English dictionaries are utilized. The comparison shows that the best translation in terms of meaning, precision, and easiness of expression is that of Ghali, followed by Pickthall's Arberry TM's and Ali's TM's respectively.

Toward a Science of Translating Eugene A. Nida, 2021-08-04. Toward a Science of Translating, first published in 1964, is still very much in demand today. Written by a linguist and anthropologist with forty years of experience in the field of language and religion, this work describes the major components of translating, setting the translating into the context of historical changes in principles and procedures over the last two centuries. With an emphasis on texts being understood within their cultural contexts, one of the reasons for its continuing relevance is the broad number of illustrative examples taken from field experience of translators in America, Africa, Europe, and Asia.
