In a weather spring day in 1962, although it was somewhat warm, Robert Simmons and I were walking to school. We were on a narrow path just inside the dense, cultivated fields of Vera's Canal Saint Martin. At the end of the tunnel we could see the impressive stone structure accompanied by several flocks of heron and a few ducks. There is no doubt that had spotted a group of birds here, walking alone. They were clearly not the same as the other birds. Although it might have seemed (Simmons in Vera's Canal Saint Martin) we were looking at the same birds.

However, even in the early morning, a host of night birds, including the bay-breasted warbler in its usual haunts in winter, large in number. We had no migrant warblers here, butly sparrows, a pair of robins, and beautiful gray doves like the Paris one, the first most abundant with a beautiful's songbird that, left us with a beautiful's song.

Forget Me Not Photography And Remembrance:

Forget Me Not Geoffrey Batchen, 2006-08-03 Forget Me Not explores the relationship between photography and memory and shows how ordinary people have sought to strengthen the emotional appeal of photographs primarily by embellishing them to create strange and often beautiful hybrid objects

Family Life, Trauma and Loss in the Twentieth Century Carol Komaromy, Jenny Hockey, 2018-05-16 This book uses personal memoir to examine links between private trauma and the socio cultural approach to death and memory developed within Death Studies The authors two key Death Studies scholars tell the stories that constitute their family lives Each bears witness to the experiences of men who were either killed or traumatised during World War One and World War Two and shows the ongoing implications of these events for those left behind The book illustrates how the rich oral history and material culture legacy bequeathed by these wars raises issues for everyone alive today Belonging to a generation who grew up in the shadow of war Komaromy and Hockey ask how we can best convey unimaginable events to later generations and what practical moral and ethical demands this brings Family Life Trauma and Loss in the Twentieth Century will be of interest to students and scholars across a range of disciplines including Death Studies Military History Research Methods Family History the Sociology of the Family and Life Writing

The Turn Around Religion in America Michael P. Kramer, 2016-02-24 Playing on the frequently used metaphors of the turn toward or turn back in scholarship on religion The Turn Around Religion in America offers a model of religion that moves in a reciprocal relationship between these two poles In particular this volume dedicates itself to a reading of religion and of religious meaning that cannot be reduced to history or ideology on the one hand or to truth or spirit on the other but is rather the product of the constant play between the historical particulars that manifest beliefs and the beliefs that take shape through them Taking as their point of departure the foundational scholarship of Sacvan Bercovitch the contributors locate the universal in the ongoing and particularized attempts of American authors from the seventeenth century forward to get it whatever that it might be right Examining authors as diverse as Pietro di Donato Herman Melville Miguel Algarin Edward Taylor Mark Twain Robert Keayne Nathaniel Hawthorne Paule Marshall Stephen Crane Ralph Waldo Emerson and Joseph B Soloveitchik among many others and a host of genres from novels and poetry to sermons philosophy history journalism photography theater and cinema the essays call for a discussion of religion s powers that does not seek to explain them as much as put them into conversation with each other Central to this project is Bercovitch s emphasis on the rhetoric ritual typology and symbology of religion and his recognition that with each aesthetic enactment of religion s power we learn something new by six New Mexico artists as well as historical photos of the movement Readers will also find interviews with each of these artists and contextualizing essays by the cocurators of the National Hispanic Cultural Center exhibit Ray Hernandez Duran and Irene Viquez as well as scholars such as Phillip B Felipe Gonzales Howard Griego and Sonja Elena Gandert The result is an incomparable look at art history in New Mexico and the importance of New Mexican artists in the Chicana and Chicano Movement
