Academic ESL Writing Eli Hinkel, 2003-10-17 Teaching Academic ESL Writing Practical Techniques in Vocabulary and Grammar fills an important gap in teacher professional preparation by focusing on the grammatical and lexical features that are essential for all ESL writing teachers and student writers to know The fundamental assumption is that before students of English for academic purposes can begin to successfully produce academic writing they must have the foundations of language in place the language tools grammar and vocabulary they need to build a text This text offers a compendium of techniques for teaching writing grammar and lexis to second language learners that will help teachers effectively target specific problem areas of students writing Based on the findings of current research including a large scale study of close to 1 500 non native speakers essays this book works with several sets of simple rules that collectively can make a noticeable and important difference in the quality of ESL students writing The teaching strategies and techniques are based on a highly practical principle for efficiently and successfully maximizing learners language gains Part I provides the background for the text and a sample of course curriculum guidelines to meet the learning needs of second language teachers of writing and second language writers Parts II and III include the key elements of classroom teaching what to teach and why possible ways to teach the material in the classroom common errors found in student prose and ways to teach students to avoid them teaching activities and suggestions and questions for discussion in a teacher training course Appendices to chapters provide supplementary word and phrase lists collocations sentence chunks and diagrams that teachers can use as needed The book is designed as a text for courses that prepare teachers to work with post secondary EAP students and as a professional resource for teachers of students in EAP courses

Second Language Acquisition in Action Andrea Nava,Luciana Pedrazzini,2018-03-22 Despite the key role played by second language acquisition SLA courses in linguistics teacher education and language teaching degrees participants often struggle to bridge the gap between SLA theories and their many applications in the classroom In order to overcome the transfer problem from theory to practice Andrea Nava and Luciana Pedrazzini present SLA principles through the actions and words of teachers and learners Second Language Acquisition in Action identifies eight important SLA principles and involves readers in an experiential approach which enables them to explore these principles in action Each chapter is structured around three stages experience and reflection conceptualisation and restructuring and planning Discussion questions and tasks represent the core of the book These help readers in the process of experiencing SLA research and provide them with opportunities to try their hands at different areas of language teachers professional expertise Aimed at those on applied linguistics MA courses TESOL EFL trainees and in service teachers Second Language Acquisition in Action features Key Questions at the start of each chapter Data based tasks to foster reflection and to help bridge the gap between theory and practice Audiovisual extracts of lessons on an accompanying website Further Reading suggestions at the end of each chapter Form-Focused Instruction and Second Language Learning Rod Ellis, 2001-06-08 How does classroom language learning take place How does an understanding of second language acquisition contribute to language teaching In answering these questions Rod Ellis reviews a wide range of research on classroom learning developing a theory of instructed second language acquisition that has significant implications for language teaching The early chapters of this book trace the attempts to explain classroom language learning in terms of general theory of learning behaviorism and the study of naturalistic language learning The middle chapters document the attempts of researchers to enter the black box of the classroom in order to describe the teaching learning behaviors that take place there and to investigate to what extent and in what ways instruction results in acquisition The book concludes with a theory of classroom language learning This theory advances an explanation of the relationship between explicit and implicit linguistic knowledge and in so doing accounts for how both form focused and meaning focused instruction contribute to second language acquisition in the classroom

Second Language Instruction/acquisition Abstracts , 1997 THE EFFECTS OF EXPLICIT FORM-FOCUSED INSTRUCTION ON L2 ORAL PROFICIENCY DEVELOPMENT Shzh-chen Nancy Lee, 2019 This study was an examination of the effects of explicit form focused instruction on the English development of Japanese university students during a seven week intervention Speaking proficiency development is a continuous challenge for most EFL learners who have limited exposure to the target language outside the classroom Within the communicative language teaching paradigm task based language learning TBLT has been considered an effective approach for developing students speaking proficiency However while TBLT has been increasingly implemented in English language classrooms investigations in which explicit form focused instruction has been integrated into task based speaking tasks are limited This longitudinal classroom based study had five purposes The first purpose was to examine the development of speaking proficiency in terms of syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy and oral fluency The second purpose was to examine the development of speaking proficiency by comparing learners who received form focused instruction with those who did not receive form focused instruction by examining differences in their syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy and oral fluency development The third purpose was to quantitatively and qualitatively examine the week to week trajectory of changes in speaking proficiency development The fourth purpose was to examine learner affective variables The final purpose was to examine the participants perceptions concerning the development of speaking proficiency based on their self assessments The participants were 104 first year students enrolled in a Japanese university All of the participants narrated a different four picture cartoon in English once a week for nine weeks The participants were divided into one comparison group and two intervention groups form focused instruction FFI and form focused instruction and peer feedback FFI PF The form focused instruction intervention included ten minutes of grammar instruction focused on three past tense forms simple past past continuous and past perfect as well as ten minutes of peer feedback Between the pretest and posttest the FFI and FFI PF participants received seven weeks of instruction before their weekly cartoon narration Participants in the comparison group did not receive any weekly interventions The pretest and posttest narration data of all participants were transcribed and analyzed using six CAF measurements mean length of T unit clause T unit ratio percentage of error free T units percentage of accurate past tense usage speech rate and self repair Moreover the pretest and posttest narrations recorded by all of the participants were analytically rated by three raters From the sample of 104 participants nine participants three representatives from each group were chosen for a week to week trajectory analysis in which their six CAF performances were qualitatively and quantitatively analyzed All of the participants completed two questionnaires after taking the pretest and posttest I developed both questionnaires based on previous literature related to second language speaking proficiency development The English Speaking Learner Affect Questionnaire was used to examine differences in participants classroom English speaking anxiety English speaking self efficacy and desire to speak English The Self Assessment of Speaking Task Questionnaire was used to examine changes in the participants self assessment of their own performances in terms of syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy and oral fluency The results indicated that form focused instruction was effective at improving the participants global syntactic accuracy and their accurate use of the simple past tense However form focused instruction did not lead to improvements in syntactic complexity or oral fluency However explicit form focused instruction did not lead to detrimental effects on syntactic complexity or oral fluency thus form focused instruction did not appear to stimulate trade off effects between syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy and oral fluency The analytical ratings provided by the raters indicated that form focused instruction did not lead to significant improvements in terms of syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy or oral fluency The results also indicated that the form focused instruction intervention was effective at quickly improving syntactic accuracy because participants who received both form focused instruction and peer feedback improved more quickly in the simple past compared to the participants who only received form focused instruction However the participants who improved syntactic accuracy quickly might have experienced trade offs with oral fluency ability as improvements in speed fluency were not noted until their syntactic accuracy reached a ceiling effect where their global accuracy and accurate use of simple past tense stopped to improve The results indicated that form focused instruction did not influence classroom English speaking anxiety as there was no significant difference seen between participants who received form focused instruction and participants who did not However an excessive amount of form focused instruction might have negative impacts on speaking anxiety because the participants who received both form focused instruction and peer feedback showed an increase in their classroom English speaking anxiety On the other hand form focused instruction had no impact on English speaking self efficacy and it had positive effects on the desire to speak English because the participants who received both form focused instruction and peer feedback exhibited a significant increase in their desire to speak English compared to the participants who did not receive form focused instruction and the participants who received only form focused instruction Finally based on the learners self assessment form focused instruction had no effects on speaking proficiency development as there was no difference in self assessed syntactic complexity syntactic accuracy and oral fluency between the participants in the three groups Participants who received form focused instruction interventions did not assess themselves to having higher syntactic accuracy despite their improvements on the CAF measures Linguistics and Language Behavior Abstracts ,2009-04
